Resolutions Adopted

The committee on resolutions offered the following report, which was adopted:

"To the Good Roads Convention held at the city of Janesville on the 15th day of October, 1906.

"Gentlemen: Your committee on resolutions respectfully report that they have had under consideration the subject of the organization of a Good Roads Association in the county of Rock in the state of Wisconsin; that they believe that there is a national, increasing and persistent demand for better roads throughout our country; that this is especially true with reference to the roads leading from the more remote parts of the country to markets and commercial centers; that in view of the establishment by the government of rural mail delivery good roads have become a necessity; that it is of paramount importance that the commercial relations existing between the rural districts and our cities shall, at no season of the year, be interrupted by the bad condition of the roads; and that a uniform system of construction and maintenance of good roads throughout the state should be adopted.

"Your committee, therefore, recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That we recommend the organization of a Good Roads Association in Rock county; that such association, when formed, cooperate with the officers of the cities, villages and towns in said county to secure the construction and maintenance of good roads in such cities, villages and towns, in such manner as shall be deemed best adapted to secure such result.

"Resolved, That we recommend the enactment of laws accepting a uniform system of construction and maintenance of good roads throughout this state.

"Resolved, That it is with pleasure we express our appreciation of the assistance that the officers of the National Good Roads Association have so kindly and generously given us, in aiding in the commencement of a movement for better roads in our country.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

Senator Whitehead Speaks

An enthusiastic meeting at the Congregational church last evening brought the convention to a close.
Three hundred men and women attended and listened with much interest to the addresses. In opening George S. Parker remarked that the interest manifested in good roads by the attendance of many from out of the city, showed that the meeting and the information given out by Col. Moore and Mr. Loucks would be of great benefit to the county.

The success here assures success to the National Good Roads Association men in other counties of the state and Wisconsin will soon be a unit for better highways. Senator John M. Whitehead stated his position on the question of good roads legislation and hinted that he would support the creation of a state highway commission. He said in part: "I know the disadvantages of being shut in on a farm for weeks and weeks at a time by muddy roads—I was brought up on a farm in Illinois. I am not blind to the advantages of good roads, but I do not wish to be quoted as being in favor of a constitutional amendment opening the state treasury for the indiscriminate building of highways.
Commissions are in a way undesirable for commissions become bureaus and bureaucratic government is contrary to the spirit of Americanism.
But if railroads and transportation companies become overbearing and need supervision commissions to supervise them should be created. Wisconsin people have approved of both the railroad rate and tax commissions and in time they will have a highway commission. I am ready to vote for an appropriation to support such a body though I do not feel that I am ready to work out in detail the construction and duties of such a department. In organizing this county association we are beginning at the right end. The people as a whole must have more than a concrete idea of how roads should be constructed and must manifest intelligence and interest in the project before state legislation can accomplish its ends.
When the people take the trouble to hold conventions then the state committee and town will become co-operators in accomplishing that which should be done."

National Association Thanks

Colonel Moore gave a very edifying address, using as his subjects the famous roads of the world, and illustrating the lecture with beautiful lantern slides. In opening he extended the thanks of the National association to the city and county for the courtesies it had been shown here. He said in substance as follows: "Mr.
Parker took us in his automobile to the plant of the Knickerbocker Ice company south of the city and there we saw materials being cast aside that should be used for the improvement of your streets and roads. You have adopted some plans that are wrong but you have done better than in many communities. One of your greatest needs, if you have not one already, is a woman's civic club. Such organizations are doing wonderful work in beautifying Toledo, Wheeling, Virginia, and other cities in planting trees and shrubs, along the streets and driveways and a magnificent embellishment could be added to your city situated as it is, and with a river through it, very heart. Your parks, though they are already excellent, your curbs and streets need attention. Organize such a club and talk improvement once a week for a time and then once a month or as often as possible invite the farmers' wives and daughters into your society and meet them at district schoolhouses, get beautiful drives beyond the limits of the city. You can study the work in Denver and Colorado Springs. Both have been made among the beautiful cities of the world by women. In Colorado Springs they have streets more than a hundred feet wide, but there is a pavement of thirty-five or thirty-six feet in width on most of them. They use concrete curbs, there also and it is just as cheap to make curbs and gutters of this as it is to make curbs of limestone.

As Col. Moore gave his illustrated lecture he threw out various hints, some of which are given below:

"Don't go over hills, go around; the ancients learned that thousands of years ago.

Good roads were responsible for much of Rome's success and this nation will never reach its zenith until you give the farmer an equal chance with the city resident.

"Don't build long straight streets where the wind can get a full sweep, destroying the road and leaving destruction by dust in house furnishings and store stocks. Adopt the circular plan of the Roman streets.

"Plant trees along your streets to protect them from the wind, but do not set them so closely together that the circulation is interfered with. In Europe fruit trees are used and the products pay for the maintenance of the highways. In Africa nut trees answer the same purpose.

President McKinley had the two hundred and fifty direct consuls and nine hundred auxiliary consuls report on the roads of the world and

CITY COUNCIL'S REGULAR GRIND

ROADS, SEWERS, WEEDS, AND WALKS DEMANDED ATTENTION.

AT SESSION LAST EVENING

Word "Franchise" Was Not Mentioned But Adjournment Was Taken to Monday Next—Rudolph and Fish Absent.

Miscellaneous and routine business occupied the attention of the City Council last evening and the word "franchise" was not mentioned in open session. Adjournment was taken to next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock when the projected Janesville & Madison interurban will be the exclusive subject of discussion. Aldermen Fish and Rudolph were absent from the meeting, the former having seriously injured one of his hands, and the latter having been suddenly called to Chicago. Alderman Connell as chairman of the finance committee submitted the customary reports on bills and the salary list. The bills which were allowed included items of $24 for Patrick Steed, weed commissioner of the west side, and $3 each for three assistants—James and Patrick Heffernan and Edward Cantwell.
For work done during the past two weeks Michael J. Dolan, commissioner of the east side, has as yet presented no statement of services rendered but it is understood that he has been busy covering the severe and frost-bitten Canadian thistles. The city treasurer's report for September was received and placed on file. His bond was found in due form and accepted.

Free From Contagious Disease.

Health Commissioner W. D. Merritt in a communication to the council stated that since his last report there had been three cases of diphtheria in three different families, and three cases of scarlet fever in the same family. Two and a half months had elapsed since the last patient afflicted with small pox had been released from quarantine and at the time of writing there was not a case of the terrific disease in the city. The health commissioner has taken steps to assure every household of the city of the spread of infection had been taken in every instance. Acting on the suggestion of the aldermen the health commissioner had taken steps to as-
spread of infection had been taken in every instance. Acting on the sug-

every instance.

Street Cleaning Protests.

Protest signed by all the residents of St. Lawrence Place and Park Place against the action of the council on Oct. 1, in abolishing those distinctive names for fractional portions of the highways, were given a respectful hearing and Ald. Dolin of the lighting committee, to which they were referred, asked for and was granted further time for their consideration. Ald.
Hager has received a protest from a dozen or more residents against the changing of the name of First street in Monterey to Monterey street. The protestants would prefer "Helen street" or "Grand avenue." The thoroughfare in question is two blocks long.

New Mains Of Water Co.

Ald. Merritt to whom was referred the report of the Janesville Water Co. to the effect that six inch mains, had been laid on Locust street from the North street intersection to Galena street, one hydrant being set as per orders, recommended the acceptance of the same and the council so acted.
The report of work done at the stone crushing plant showed that during the two weeks ending Oct. 13, 22 1/2 yards of crushed stone at sixty cents a yard, total $372.30—had been delivered. It was accepted. Assistant Street Commissioner Thomas McKune recommended that new sidewalks be ordered built in front of lot 13, Partridge subdiv. of lot 5, Pease's addn. on Prosper ave.; lots 3, 4, and 5 of block 7, Forest Park addn. on North street.
His report was accepted and the street commissioner instructed to see that the walks were built.

Cement Walk Problems.

Through M. O. Monat, secretary, the Central Land Co., owner of lots 13-21 in Mitchell's fourth addition asked that the order for the construction of a cement sidewalk in that locality be either withdrawn or extended until such time as the city might be able adequately to take care of the surface water at the Five Points. Ald. Dolin stated that the recess that the petitioners were willing to lay the walk now providing the city would stand liable for any damage done to it by an overflow and moved that this provision be coupled with the order. His motion was carried. W. F. Felz filed a protest against being assessed $33.75 for a cement walk built by W. J. Hill, in Oct. 1905, at the order of the city.
The said walk had not been substantially and a new top which was later added cracked and broke. He asked that he be either be released from the tax or that the street commissioner be instructed to see that the walk was substantially. The alderman of the fourth ward to whom the matter was referred was granted further time for its consideration.

Road Work And Sewers.

ported that P. W. Ryan had fulfilled his contract for filling the gully on

Before The Footlights.

Tomorrow Evening's Offering. Another big dramatic success has come out of Chicago. "When several years ago, the first production of "Arizona" took place, everyone marvelled that the play had such a long run in Chicago. It is almost a similar state of affairs as to be recorded for "Told in the Hills," a new drama of western life, which has been running all the past summer in Chicago, and is announced for presentation here at the Myers Theatre, tomorrow evening. Edwin Arden is the star of the production and he has scored the success of his life as Genesee Jack, the cowboy and scout hero of "Told in the Hills."

JULIA DEAN, "TOLD IN THE HILLS"

The action of this new western drama centers around the love of Genesee Jack for a beautiful eastern girl who is visiting on a Montana ranch. There is an Indian uprising, a detachment of troops is ambushed, but Genesee Jack saves everyone and wins the love of the girl. The background of this stirring and dramatic story is vividly colored by the Indian blanket and war trappings of the frontier, the love, the big buttons and uniforms of Uncle Sam's soldiers, the rough and ready trappings of the western cowboys and scouts. Mr. Arden will be supported by a splendid company, under the direction of the Will J. Block Amusement company. Miss Julia Dean will appear as Rachel Hardy, an eastern girl on a visit to the western ranch, and others in the cast will be Louise Galloway, Edna Dorman, George Spencer, Edward Ellis, Walter Greengard.

Standard Opera Co. in Rockford. Of some of the principals in the Standard Opera Co. and their work in Balfie's "Bohemian Girl" which is to be presented in Jamesville next Monday or Tuesday evening (the engagement here is for two nights), the Rockford Register-Gazette, on the occasion of the recent performances there, had this to say:

Miss Pauline Perry, who assumes the part of Arline, is charming in her simplicity and total lack of affectation. Her voice is a soprano of beautiful quality, which she uses without apparent effort, and her work is musical in every particular. Her rendition of "I Dreamt I Dwell in Marble Halls" was the gem of the whole performance and quite captivated the audience.

The well-known "Bliss Forever" past, lost none of its beauty at the hands of Miss Clara Hunt the Gipsy Queen, who possesses a mezzo-contralto voice very dramatic in quality. The audience showed its appreciation of the number by the generous applause which was offered. The baritone, George A. Natanson, has a pleasing voice of good timbre, which he uses to the best advantage. Edwin Howard, who essayed the role of Thad, went evidently labored under the disadvantage of a cold, yet his singing showed a good method though the voice was somewhat light for the part.

More or less interest was felt in Cecil DeMille because of his literary attainments in the dramatic line, and his part as the frothy member of the nobility was well sustained.

The orchestra, which is small, is a good one. Among other good features of its work that of the obnoxious soloist in the "Heart Baked Down" is worthy of mention.

Anglin's New Vehicle. Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller have met with pronounced success in William Vaughan Moody's new drama, "The Great Divide," playing at the Princess Theatre, New York.

Madjeska (Leth to Leave). Mme. Madjeska, who made up her mind to abandon the footlights. She has disposed of her ranch in southern California and is arranging for a brief tour this season.

Adel's Newest Play. George Adel's new play, under the name of "Arbe" is to be produced soon after the holidays by Charles Dillingham.

..Forty Years Ago..

Jamesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, October 16, 1866.—Forty-four cases of cholera in Chicago yesterday and but forty-four deaths.

A Great Republican Mass Meeting, to be held in Jamesville on Friday, the 19th of October.

A great mass meeting will be held in this city Friday the 19th inst. commencing at one o'clock p. m. and will be addressed by Hon. Mart. H. Carpenter, N. A. Patterson of Tennessee, Gen. W. J. Smith of Tennessee, and Colonel Stokes of Tennessee. All of these gentlemen have positively agreed to be present, and General Carl Schurz who is now to be in the state, will be invited, as well as other distinguished speakers. Let the union-loving, rebel-hating, solid republicans of old Rock turn out en masse and give these brave Southern loyalists a reception worthy of them and of yourselves. Remember, the day and the hour. Speaking by some of the gentlemen named above. Come one, come all, and let us rally round the flag once more.

Dr. H. D. Great, H. N. Comstock, Dr. Henry Palmer, Daniel Wilcox, A. Jackson, James M. Burgess, G. Grabenberger, W. G. Roberts, James Sutherland, S. J. M. Putnam, Committee.

The friends of the President are urging him to make summary demand upon England for indemnification for losses by Anglo-rebel cruisers, arguing that foreign warships would restore him to political popularity. They advise him to make a thirty-day demand upon England, coupled with a threat to seize Canada to enforce payment.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

The good roads convention is a thing of the past and it remains to be seen what results will follow. The organization perfected is the first of the kind in the state, but before the year closes it will be duplicated in many other counties.

The plan adopted is the same as pursued in every state where the work is progressing and there is every reason to believe that Wisconsin will share in the benefits.

The present law provides that any township may build one mile of new road each year at an expense not to exceed $1000, the expense to be divided between the town and county. It is a crude law and no roads have ever been built under its provisions. The good roads movement contemplates new legislation along intelligent lines, including state aid and state supervision. It also includes the study of how to make the best roads from the material at hand on the $43,000 now being expended by the county.

People who had the pleasure of listening to President Moore and Mr. Loucks were convinced of the fact that expert knowledge is necessary to the building of any kind of roads, and also that this knowledge can be readily acquired by any intelligent man who is willing to learn.

The statement was strongly emphasized that Rock county possessed natural advantages in the way of material such as few localities enjoy. The supply of stone and gravel is abundant and the county is entitled to the best roads in the state.

Nothing contributes more to the value of the farm than a good roadway and the movement just started is entitled to every encouragement. The first meeting will be held at the courthouse Nov. 13, when the organization will be perfected and plans developed for active work.

DISGRUNTLED CANDIDATES

The primary law left in its wake a lot of disgruntled candidates. McGovern of Milwaukee, Stevens of Oshkosh and Blanchard of Janesville being on the list.

Mr. Blanchard is the only one of the three in whom the Bower City is particularly interested.

He was a defeated candidate for the office of district attorney, the successful rival being John L. Fisher, the present incumbent. Mr. Blanchard has decided to be an independent candidate, and so announces himself in a circular addressed to the voters of Rock county.

He states that he feels called upon to adopt this policy for two or three reasons:

First, the light vote at the primaries, when only 25 per cent of the voters took interest enough to attend. Second, the unfitness of Mr. Fisher for the office; and, third, his own peculiar ability established by a long and successful career.

So far as the primary law objection is concerned it amounts to nothing. Under the old caucus and convention system, the claim was made, that the minority ran the party, and the same conditions prevail under the primary law. The men who took part in the caucuses vote at the primaries and the rank and file endorse their action and support the candidates nominated. Mr. Blanchard will be disappointed if he expects to increase his ratio at the polls.

His second objection is also a question for the people to determine. The republican party had confidence enough in Mr. Fisher to nominate him and the party has a record for staying by its nominees.

As regards Mr. Blanchard's qualifications, it must be gratifying to him, as well as his friends, to know that he enjoys a record of distinguished success in so many courts.

It is unfortunate at his age that the political microbe was encouraged to find a lodgment in his busy brain, for it will prove to him a snare and delusion.

The aftermath of a successful life should be serene and peaceful. The little office of district attorney isn't worth the candle to a man whose achievements have been won, and Mr. Blanchard will have occasion to be thankful over his second defeat.

RAILROAD ENTERPRISE

There is today building and under contract in this country 22,000 miles of railroad at an estimated cost of $750,000,000. In addition to this vast sum $400,000,000 is being spent on terminal stations and permanent improvements. That means that more than one billion dollars is being invested in the single industry of railway transportation.

Prominent among the new roads in process of construction is the 1700 miles representing the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul in its new line to the coast. This road, like three or four others just now building across the continent, is inspired by faith in the resources of a great undeveloped country.

The states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Utah are rich in possibilities, which nothing but a railroad can develop, and so mountains are overcome and obstacles removed which seem insurmountable. One of the new roads is costing $70,000 a mile. Yet the men behind it believe that the future warrants the investment.

The north and the south, as well as the central west, are sharing in this wonderful railroad era. The Southern Pacific, which has long had a monopoly of gulf coast trade is being paralleled by another road, while the Canadian Pacific is to have a rival in the north.

The vast sums of money invested in these great railway enterprises is but a fragment in comparison to the wealth which will develop as the result. Railroads may need government and state control, but they should be encouraged in the spirit of enterprise manifest, for they are the world's great civilizers.

Senator La Follette's offer to help in this campaign, according to the Milwaukee Free Press, is in the form of a personal letter to Governor Davidson dated Oct. 9. The subject is so delicate that the governor does not feel warranted in making the contents of the letter public. The people are waiting to know what sort of support the senator will accord to Speaker Connor, the candidate for lieutenant governor.

The request of Mr. Clough that the council adjourn for one week before acting on the franchise was granted with such unanimity that hopes are now entertained that favorable action will be taken. It is to be sincerely hoped that a mutual agreement will result for the good of the city.

The death of H. W. Chynoweth of Madison removes from the state one of its conspicuous public men. Mr. Chynoweth was a prominent politician as well as a prominent lawyer and a close friend and adviser of Senator La Follette during his administration.

The editors of southern California have just returned from an outing to the Hawaiian Islands. While in Honolulu they issued a 20-page edition of the Evening Bulletin—an interesting and instructive feature and one of the novel features of the trip.

Mr. Bryan's Commoner is still publishing letters of his trip around the world, as well as extracts from his speeches in the south, where he is trying to square himself on the government ownership proposition. Mr. Bryan is a busy man. He will not be so busy after the next campaign.

The Bank of England and the Bank of Germany have both advanced rates of interest to prevent the flow of gold to America. The New York money market, however, is easier and financial conditions improving.

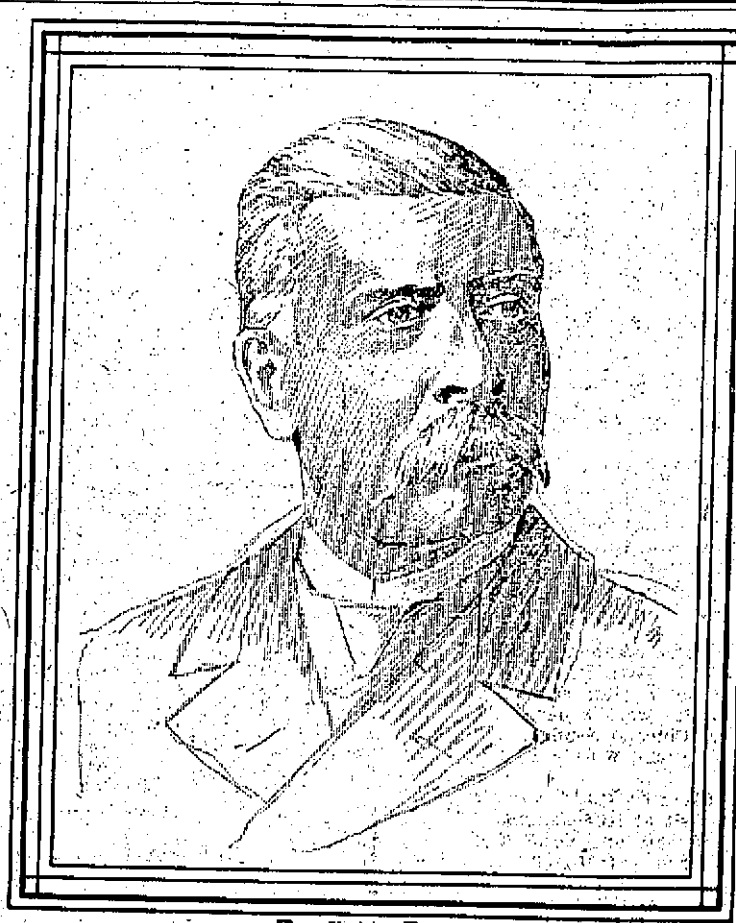

The many friends of ex-Governor Geo. W. Peek will sympathize with him in the loss of his wife. Mrs. Peek was a Rock county girl before the war. Her father, John Rowley, being one of the pioneer farmers of Rock Prairie.

"A Reason and a Result"

It's a common thing to hear the dental traveling men come into Dr. Richards' office and find him as busy as a man could be.

"Well, Richards, I've been around to all the other dental offices today, and you are the only man I have found who is doing anything."

People are keeping him busy because he is doing two things.

Painless work at a reasonable price. There are a few people who rather pay $10.00 for gold crowns because possibly they think they are getting better value thereby.

But the fact remains that Dr. Richards is putting out hundreds of gold crowns at exactly $5.00 each.

Which are "identical" in every respect, workmanship, quality of gold, etc., etc.

EDWARD SHIELDS OF LIMA

Secured Knife from Chest and Cut Vein in Arm—Dr. F. B. Farnsworth Summoned.

The flow of blood was stopped and Dr. F. B. Farnsworth summoned from the city. He cared for Shields and today the man was suffering but little from the loss of blood, being of strong and robust constitution. He has been at the county hospital for a number of years.

APOLLO CLUB HEARD FORREST D. CARR

And Mrs. J. F. Sweeney in Presentation of a Series of Classical and Beautiful Compositions.

The first concert of the Apollo Club's present season was given last evening before an audience which quite filled Library Hall. It was an unqualified and artistic success. The whole program had been entrusted to Forrest Dabney Carr, basso cantante, of Chicago, with Mrs. J. F. Sweeney as the accompanist. The first part of the entertainment consisted of songs which gave Mr. Carr free scope for illustrating the wide range of his talent as an interpreter and executant. When various and the qualifications and demands on an artist in order to interpret such compositions as the prologue to Leoncavallo's "Il Pagliaccio," the two "Tschalkowsky numbers," "None But a Lonely Heart," and "Don Juan's Serenade," Thirindell's "Absent," or that tremendously exciting Handel excerpt "Why Do the Nations," one can well understand how true and rare an artist Mr. Carr is. And, moreover, one noticed this feature about his singing, which is somewhat rare: he sings as one who loves to sing, possessing that happy faculty of showing his audience that he enjoys his efforts quite as much as they do. There is no tinge of professionalism about Mr. Carr. He and his art are wedded to each other, and the enjoyment of an evening in his hands is greatly intensified in consequence.

But if the first part of the program was so praiseworthy, what can be said of the second? It was a beautiful whole in itself, consisting of Arthur Somervell's Song Cycle of Tennyson's "Maud." This, so far as can be learned, is the first time that a Janesville audience has had the privilege of hearing this classic composition—a work of the truest merit, Wagneresque in its treatment, and yet within the compass of a brief thirty minutes, running through the gamut of dread, desolation, reminiscence, joy, tender love, passionate love, self-accusation, awful remorse, recovery, resignation.

To analyze so complete a gem as this work would seem to partake of sacrilege. The scene is never shifting, the emotions being carried along with irresistible force, one likes to think of the work as a complete whole. The writer has performed a signal service, for he has set to music of the highest order an entirely subjective narrative, which, while some might regard as fragmentary and therefore unsatisfactory, yet, from the very nature of the problem presented, must necessarily be the former, and escapes being the latter, on the principle that the best things are most often confined within a small compass.

Mr. Carr has thoroughly mastered the technical and artistic features of this truly beautiful work as a whole and in particular, and so left nothing to be desired. Mrs. Sweeney's brilliant and artistic accompaniments completed a most successful evening's entertainment, all of which augurs well for the Apollo club's season now so auspiciously ushered in. The following houses to donate:

3 last evening: Leoncavallo "Pagliacci"; Tschalkowsky "None But a Lonely Heart"; "Don Juan's Serenade"; Thirindell "Absent"; Tennyson "Maud"; "Why Do the Nations Rage"; Handel "Good Night"; Lord Tennyson Song Cycle—"Maud"; Music by Arthur Somervell.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS.

Sir John smiled his courtliest smile. "I always believe a lady," he answered, "before her face." Guy Oswald gave it out in Africa—that he was engaged to be married, and he even declared that he was returning home to be married. Jack did the same in every respect. Unfortunately there was only one fond heart waiting for the couple of them at home. That is why I thought it expedient to give the young people an opportunity of settling it between themselves.

The smile left his stern old face. He moved uneasily and walked to the fireplace, where he stood with his unsteady hands moving idly, almost nervously, among the ornaments on the mantelpiece. He committed the rare discourtesy of almost turning his back upon a lady.

"I must ask you to believe," he said, looking anywhere but at her, "that I did not forget you in the matter. I may seem to have acted with an utter disregard for your feelings."

He broke off suddenly, and, turning, he stood on the hearth rug with his feet apart, his hands clasped behind his back, his head slightly bowed.

"I drew on the reserve of an old friendship," he said. "You were kind enough to say the other day that you were indebted to me, to some extent. You are indebted to me to a larger extent than you perhaps realize. You owe me fifty years of happiness; fifty years of a life that might have been happy had you decided differently when—when we were younger. I do not blame you now. I never blamed you. But the debt is there. You know my life; you know almost every day of it. You cannot deny the debt. I drew upon that."

And the white-haired woman raised her head.

"Don't," she said gently, "please don't say any more. I know all that your life has been, and why. You did quite right. What is a little trouble to me, a little passing inconvenience, the tattle of a few idle tongues, compared with what Jack's life is to you? I see now that I ought to have opposed it strongly instead of letting it take its course. You are right; you always have been right. John, there is a sort of consolation in the thought: I like it. I like to think that you were always right and that it was I who was wrong. It confirms my respect for you. We shall get over this somehow."

"The young lady," suggested Sir John, "will get over it after the manner of her kind. She will marry some one else, let us hope, before her wedding dress goes out of fashion."

"Millie will have to get over it as she may. Her feelings need scarcely be taken into consideration."

Lady Cantourne made a little movement toward the door. There was much to see to much of that women's work which makes weddings the wild, confused ceremonies that they are.

"I am afraid," said Sir John, "that I never thought of taking them into consideration. As you know, I hardly considered yours. I hope I have not overdrawn that reserve."

He had crossed the room as he spoke to open the door for her. His fingers were on the handle, but he did not turn it, awaiting her answer. She did not look at him, but passed him toward the shaded lamp, with that desire to fix her attention upon some inanimate object which he knew of old.

"The reserve," she answered, "will stand more than that. It has accumulated with compound interest. But I deny the debt of which you spoke just now. There is no debt. I have paid it year by year, day by day. For each one of those fifty years of untappiness I have paid a year of regret."

He opened the door and passed out into the brilliantly lighted passage and down the stairs, where the servants were waiting to open the door and help her to her carriage.

Sir John did not go downstairs with her.

Later on he dined in his usual solitary grandeur. He was as carefully dressed as ever. The discipline of his household, like the discipline under which he held himself, was unrelaxed.

"What wine is this," he asked, when he had tasted the port.

"Yellow seal, sir," replied the butler confidently.

Sir John slipped again.

"It is a new bin," he said.

"Yes, sir. First bottle of the lower bin, sir."

Sir John nodded with an air of self-satisfaction. He was pleased to have proved to himself and to the "damned butler" who had caught him napping in the library that he was still a young man in himself, with senses and taste unimpaired. But his hand was at the small of his back as he returned to the library.

He was not at all sure about Jack; did not know whether to expect him or not. Jack did not always do what one might have expected him to do under given circumstances. And Sir John rather liked him for it. Perhaps it was that small taint of heredity which was in blood, and makes it thicker than water.

"Nothing like blood, sir," he was in the habit of saying, "in horses, dogs and men." And thereafter he usually threw back his shoulders.

The good blood that ran in his veins was astir tonight. The incidents of the day had roused him from the peacefulness that lies under a weight of years (we have to lift the years one by one and lay them aside before we find it), and Sir John Meredith would have sat very upright in his chair, were it not for that carping pain in his back. He waited for an hour with his eyes almost continually on the clock, but Jack never came. Then he rang the bell.

"Coffee," he said. "I like punctuality, if you please."

"Thought Mr. Meredith might be expected," sir, murmured the butler humbly.

Sir John was reading the evening paper or appearing to read it, although he had not his glasses.

"Oblige me by refraining from thought," he said, urbanely.

So the coffee was brought, and Sir John consumed it in silent majesty.

While he was pouring out his second cup—a diminutive size—the bell rang. He set down the silver coffee pot with a plebeian clatter, as if his nerves were not quite so good as they used to be.

It was not Jack, but a note from him.

My Dear Father—Circumstances have necessitated the breaking off of my engagement at the last moment. Tomorrow's ceremony will not take place. As the above named circumstances were partly under your control, I need hardly offer an explanation. I leave town and probably England tonight. I am, your affectionate son, JOHN MEREDITH.

There were no signs of haste or discomposure. The letter was neatly written in the somewhat large calligraphy, firm, bold, orna, which Sir John had insisted on Jack's learning.

The stationery bore a club crest. It was an eminently gentlemanly communication. Sir John read it, and gravely tore it up, throwing it into the fire, where he watched it burn.

Nothing was further from his mind than sentiment. He was not much given to sentiment; this hard-hearted old sire of an ancient stock. He never thought of the apocryphal day when he, being laid in his grave, should at last win the gratitude of his son.

"When I am dead and gone you may be sorry for it," were not the words that any man should hear from his lips.

More than once during their lives

Lady Cantourne had said:

"You never change your mind, John," referring to one thing or another. And he had invariably answered:

"No, I am not the sort of man to change."

He had always known his own mind.

When he had been in a position to rule he had done so with a rod of iron. His purpose had never been inflexible. Jack had been the only person who had ever openly opposed his desire. In this, as in other matters, his indomitable will had carried the day, and in the moment of triumph it is only the weak who repine. Success should have no disappointments for the man who has striven for it if his will be strong.

Sir John rather liked the letter. It could only have been written by a son of his—admitting nothing, not even defeat. But he was disappointed. He had hoped that Jack would come—that some sort of reconciliation would be patched up. And somehow the disappointment affected him physically. It attacked him in the back and intensified the pain there. It made him feel weak and unlike himself. He rang the bell.

"Go round," he said to the butler,

"to Dr. Damer and ask him to call in during the evening, if he has time."

The butler busied himself with the coffee tray, bestirring, desirous of gaining time.
